

Refuse & Utility Bins

Large capacity bins hold more industrial supplies than traditional bins.

Ergonomically-designed handles make lifting and emptying food refuse quick and easy.

Attractive styling conveys a clean, upscale image in hospitality environments.

Rubbermaid's Redesigned Refuse and Utility Bins Look Good and Work Hard.

Restaurant and lodging facilities are always looking for equipment that will meet aesthetic standards while increasing efficiency. Rubbermaid's redesigned Refuse and Utility Bins can do both. They blend well with dining environments, and their sleek contours and smooth, easy-to-clean surfaces compliment stylish carts. Their larger capacities reduce the number of trips to disposal areas, and larger openings make emptying full bins quick and simple.

Until now, Refuse and Utility Bins were only considered bussing aids. But Rubbermaid's redesigned Refuse and Utility Bins have changed that image. They can be attached to 17 different Rubbermaid® carts commonly used in the institutional, hospitality, food service, and industrial markets. The bins once limited to silverware and refuse collection can now hold cleaning or mini-bar supplies, hand tools, or electrical wire. Placing contents in the larger contoured opening is easy, and molded-in handles facilitate lifting and emptying.

Wherever Rubbermaid's material transport carts are at work, the redesigned Refuse and Utility Bins add style and efficiency.
