

Rx Series Holding pliers Flat nose pliers, RX 7490

These pliers are made from high performance tools steel with specially forged box joint with polished surface, extra long contact surfaces made possible by a special manufacturing technique.

The pliers are toughness hardened to 45-48 HRC. Handles in two component synthetic material and come with return spring. This plier has 20 mm smooth gripping surface radius jaws.

|  |  |  | Amm | Bmm | Cmm | Dmm | Emm | Fmm |  |
|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------|---------|---------|---------|---------|---------|---------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| RX 7490                                                                           | 0103195                                                                           | 1                                                                                 | 146.5   | 20      | 9       | 6.7     | 1.2     | 3.2     | 70                                                                                  |